PHARAOH'S REVENGE...

The Seder is a virtual reality experience: The matzah reminds us of the bread that had no time to rise as our forefathers grabbed their belongings on that night of the Exodus. The bitter herbs remind us of the bitterness of the 210 years of slavery; the charoses resembles the mortar that was used to build the treasure cities of Pisom and Ramses. But when all is said and done, and we rise from the table, do we really feel that we have actually left Egypt? Or do we feel our stomachs turning over from what might be called 'Pharaoh's revenge' - four large glasses of wine and copious amounts of matzah, not to mention boiled egg with salt water followed by the main course of the Pesach meal!

THE HIDDEN PERSUADERS

In the 1960s a new form of advertising was discovered and almost immediately made illegal. Madison Avenue advertising firms discovered that an image of their product on a single frame in a movie playing at 24 frames per second left a 'subliminal' message imprinted in the mind of the viewer. A message of which he was totally unaware. Because of its extremely sub-

READY WHEN YOU ARE MR. DE MILLE!

The Torah wants us to actually experience coming out of Egypt. So why don't we do something far more dramatic at the Seder? For example: Half the guests at the Seder could dress as Jewish slaves and start the evening by building a large wall with bricks and mortar. Periodically, the other half of the guests, dressed as Egyptian taskmasters, could come along and beat the living-daylights out of them! Of course, to make everything fair, halfway through the evening the roles would be reversed. Then, just before midnight, everyone would sit down together (on cushions!) and have a nice Pesach meal. I'm sure that everyone would certainly feel that they had 'left Egypt' after that! Or at the very least, couldn’t we run a computer game called something like VIRTUAL EGYPT?

The most sophisticated 3-D graphics would then transport us back to the Exodus. And yet, the Torah, which sees to the very depths of the psyche, mandates very subtle observances to create the virtual reality of coming out of Egypt. It’s a puzzle...

WHAT'S THE STORY BEHIND ALL THOSE POEMS AT THE END OF THE HAGGADAH?
WHO WROTE THEM?
WHY DO WE SAY THEM?

The word Haggadah comes from the Torah command - “And you shall tell (v’Higadeta) your children on that day...” Although the minimal fulfillment of this mitzvah is a simple recounting of the going out of Egypt and explaining a few of the Pesach symbols, proper fulfillment requires much more.

Over the centuries additions have been made to the Haggadah to enhance this mitzvah. Many of these additions gained such wide acceptance that they became part of the Haggadah. One of those additions is the Chad Gadya. Another is 'Dayeinu.' Rav Saadia Gaon (882 CE - 942 CE) included neither in his Haggadah, although he did recognize the existence of Dayeinu. Neither Rashi (1040 - 1105) nor Maimonides (1135 - 1204) included Chad Gadya in their versions of the Haggadah, although Rashi did include Dayeinu.

In the Machzor Vitri, Rav Simcha of Vitri, an important disciple of Rashi, includes sections which we don’t say today. Although Rashi himself did not say them, they were said in Provence (Southern France) in his day.

The metamorphosis of the Haggadah concluded in the late middle ages, aided by the invention of the Printing Press, which enabled the basic Ashkenazic version which had

Dear Rabbi,

Hi! We are some students from the San Diego Hebrew Day School. We are currently researching some things for a Haggadah we are working on in school, we have some questions and would like you to answer them for us.

In the Dayenu it states:
1. Had He split the sea for us, and not carried us through it in dryness, it would have been enough.
2. Had He carried us through it in dryness, and not drowned our opponents in it, it would have been enough.
3. Had He not gratified our needs in the desert we would have not survived.

Students of the San Diego Hebrew Day School.

Dear Students,

I hope I don’t get in trouble for doing your homework for you, but here are some answers to the excellent questions you have posed.

Basically, Hashem has many ways of achieving any goal, and is not limited to any one specific course of action. For example:
1. Had the sea floor not been dry, it would have been enough.
2. Had the Egyptians not drowned, it would have been enough.
3. Had Hashem not supplied us with Manna from heaven and water from a rock, it would have been enough.

The seder is over. You are about to settle back into your chair, when suddenly you are roused from your wine-induced reverie by everyone launching into the traditional rendering of Chad Gadya. “What are we doing singing nursery rhymes at a time like this?” — You think to yourself. “Here we all are energetically belting out a song that everyone sings, and no-one has the slightest idea of what it’s got to do with Pesach! Is Chad Gadya no more than what I know an old lady who swallowed a fly’ would have sounded like if Burl Ives had been Jewish? Is it no more than a harmless ditty to amuse the children? Or does Chad Gadya have a secret meaning? A hidden depth of allusion beneath the surface...

Let’s look at the surface a second. Chad Gadya has ten stanzas. It goes like this: One kid. One kid. That daddy bought for two zuzim.

One kid. One kid.
And came the cat and ate the kid that daddy bought for two zuzim. One kid. One kid.
And came the dog and bit the cat that ate the kid etc.
And came the stick and hit the dog etc.
And came the fire and burned the stick etc.
And came the water and doused the fire etc.
And came the ox and drank the water etc.
And came the slaughterer and killed the ox etc.
And came the angel of death and killed the slaughterer etc.
And came The Holy One Blessed be He and killed the angel of death that killed the slaughterer that killed the ox that drank the water that doused the fire that hit the dog that bit the cat that ate the kid that daddy bought for two zuzim. One kid. One kid.

The ten stanzas of Chad Gadya correspond to the ten kingdoms that will rule from before the beginning of time until the end of the world. They are:

- Hashem alone before the creation.
- The Babylon of Nimrod
- Egypt
- Yisrael until the destruction of the First Temple
- The Babylon of Nebuchadnezzar
- Persia and Media
- Greece and Macedonia
- Rome
- Mashiach
- Hashem alone

“One kid. One kid. That daddy bought for two zuzim. One kid. One kid.”

- Before the beginning of all things, Hashem reigned alone. His is the first Kingdom. Avraham Avinu is the gadya that ‘Daddy’ (Hashem) ‘bought’ for two zuzim. When you buy something it implies that the money you give is equal the acquisition that you receive. Avraham Avinu is weighed against the two gold zuzim of heaven and earth - the entire creation - because it was Avraham who first recognized his Creator.

“As a dog returns to his vomit, so a fool to his folly.” There can be no greater example of a fool returning to his folly than Pharaoh, King of Egypt. Despite all the plagues of Egypt, Pharaoh repeated his mistake over and over again. The calba - the dog - is the symbol of the third kingdom, the kingdom of Egypt which ‘bit’ the cat of Babylon. It overshadowed and outshone the kingdom of Babylon, even though there was never a direct military confrontation. Thus it only ‘bit’ but didn’t ‘eat’.

“And came the stick and hit the dog etc.”

- The stick is the staff of Hashem that Moshe used to ‘hit’ the Egyptians. This was the staff that turned into a snake and ate all the staffs of the Egyptian sorcerers. This was the staff that was raised over the Nile and turned it to blood and it was this staff that vanquished the might of Pharaoh. The staff symbolizes the fourth kingdom - the kingdom of Yisrael. Yisrael achieved tranquility with the building of the first Beis Hamikdash, when the staff - the scepter - of Yehuda held sway. Then came the fire...

“And came the fire and burned the stick etc.”

- When the Jewish People turned aside from the Torah and began to sin, a fire was dispatched out of Heaven. A lion of fire appeared to blaze through the Paroches - the curtain that divided the Holy from the Holy of Holies in the Temple. This lion of fire, in terrestrial form, took the shape of the Babylonian kingdom of Nebuchadnezzar which ‘burned the staff’ of Yisrael. Nebuchadnezzar became the instrument of Heavenly justice to punish The

When we think about the vista of Jewish History it seems like an impossibly large canvas for us to relate to. It seems so remote. The events seem so distant from us. But we can relate to Jewish History in a way which makes it very real.

We can connect to our heritage without feeling that it’s obscured by the mists of time.

How?

Watch!

Take the average Seder. At a typical seder there will be three generations at the table: A grandfather, a father, and a son.

Let’s say that the average generation gap is 30 years. So a typical seder represents a span of 60 years of Jewish History.

But really if you think about it, there are really not 3 generations at the table, but 7. Because the grandfather sitting at our table was possibly a grandson at his grandfather’s seder.

And similarly, our grandson will probably be a grandfather at his grandson’s seder.

So our seder could contain in it as much as 7 x 30 = 210 years!

If you divide 210 years into the time elapsed since the first Seder (approx. 3300 years ago), you come out with the following calculation:

$$3,300 \div 210 \sim 14.$$

In other words, we just shrunk the vast expanse of 3,300 years of history into just over 14 sedarim. That’s all that separates us from the experience of leaving Egypt - as little as 14 sedarim!

“And you shall tell your son on that day.”

The whole of Judaism is founded on 14 fathers passing-over the truth of the Exodus to 14 sons, witnessed by those 7 generations which each seder spans. Tradition is only 14 seders long.

At the Pesach Seder we first eat matzah and maror (bitter herbs) separately and then we make a “sandwich” of the two which we eat after declaring that we do so as a way of recalling what the Sage Hillel used to do in the days of the Beis Hamikdash.

In Temple times the flesh of the korban pesach was consumed on the first night of Pesach along with matzah and maror, with all of these mitzvos being of Torah origin. Hillel’s opinion, which was disputed by his colleagues, was that the Torah instructed us to eat all three of these wrapped up together and that the conflicting tastes simultaneously experienced did not nullify each other since all were obligatory in the same degree.

After the destruction of the Beis Hamikdash, however, we have no opportunity at all to eat the korban pesach, and the mitzvah of eating maror today is only of rabbinic nature. Should we start off eating matzah and maror as a sandwich we will not fulfill the Torah mitzvah of eating matzah even according to Hillel because its taste will be considered nullified by the maror which is only a rabbinic obligation. We therefore begin by eating them separately to assure proper fulfillment of the mitzvah of matzah, and only afterwards do we combine them to recall how Hillel did these mitzvos in Temple times when both were equal Torah obligations.

The essential goal of the Pesach Seder is to communicate the story of the going out of Egypt. The following is a compilation of insights on the Haggadah. We hope they will enrich your Pesach Seder.

♦ Pesach

The Torah calls Pesach “Chag HaMatzos.” But we call it “Pesach.” Why is this so? Rav Chaim Volozhiner explains as follows: The word Matzos and the word Mitzvos are spelled exactly the same in Hebrew. Thus “Chag HaMatzos” can be read “Chag HaMitzvos,” meaning that by leaving Egypt and receiving the Torah, the Jewish People now have the opportunity to earn great reward by doing the Mitzvos. Pesach, on the other hand, means Passover: Hashem “passed over” the houses of the Bnei Yisrael. By calling it Pesach, we emphasize the good that Hashem has done for us. Our Sages teach us not to serve Hashem with an eye to the reward; rather we should serve Him out of a sense of love and gratitude. By calling it Pesach we de-emphasize the reward that each Mitzvah brings, and instead focus on the good that Hashem has done for us.

♦ Karpas

The Talmud explains that by beginning the Seder meal in an unusual way, with a vegetable instead of with bread, the children will be curious and ask, “Why are we beginning the meal with a vegetable instead of bread?” Once their curiosity is aroused, they will be more attentive to the story of the Exodus. Why a vegetable? Just as a vegetable serves as an appetizer, so too the unusual things we do this evening of the Exodus. Why a vegetable? Just as a vegetable serves as an appetizer, so too the unusual things we do this evening of the Exodus.

♦ The Four Questions

According to the Abarbanel, the son is pointing out a contradiction: On the one hand, we recline like free people and dip our food like aristocrats. But, on the other hand, we eat “bread of affliction” and bitter herbs. Are we celebrating freedom here, or are we commemorating the slavery? The answer is both! “We were slaves to Pharaoh in Egypt, and Hashem, our G-d, took us out from there with a ‘strong hand’...” Tonight we experience the transition from slavery to freedom.

♦ “And if the Holy One, Blessed be He, had not taken our fathers out of Egypt, we and our children and the children of our children would still be under the domination of Pharaoh in Egypt.”

“Kiddush Hashem” — Sanctifying the Name of Heaven by giving up one’s life — is not a Mitzvah that every Jew has the opportunity to fulfill. And so it was that in Auschwitz a debate arose amongst the religious inmates: What is the correct form of the Bracha for this Mitzvah? “Baruch Atah...L’kadesh Shmo B’rabim” (Blessed are You...Who has commanded us to sanctify His Name in public), or “...Al Kiddush Shmo B’rabim” (Who has commanded concerning the sanctification of His Name in public). The Rabbi was asked, and he answered: For a Mitzvah that one can do on someone else’s behalf, one says “Al”. But for a Mitzvah that one can only do oneself, like putting on Tefillin one says “L” — “L’haniach Tefillin.” Since giving up one’s life is not something that one can do on someone else’s behalf, the correct form of the Bracha is “L’kadesh Shmo B’rabim.” When a person looks death in the face and is concerned as to the exactitude of the Bracha he will make as he exits this world — this is someone who can never be enslaved. Once Hashem redeemed us from Egypt, our oppressors may dominate our bodies, but our souls can never again be enslaved.

♦ The Wicked Son

What does he say? “What does this drudgery mean to you?” The wicked son’s question is a quote from the Torah: “When your children will say to you...what does this drudgery mean to you!” The key to his wickedness lies in the word “say.” He doesn’t ask a question at all; rather, he “says.” Therefore...You should take the shine out of his teeth and say, “It’s for this that Hashem did for me when I left Egypt.” “For me and not for him.” The word “him” is in the third person. Since the wicked son’s question is rhetorical, it gets no direct response. To whom, then, is the father speaking? To the son who “doesn’t know how to ask a question.” The father looks at this son and warns him, “for me and not for him... Don’t let his sarcastic smirk fool you... Had he been in Egypt, he would have assimilated into Egyptian society, and would not have been redeemed.

“And the One Who Does Not Know How to Ask”

The Chida — Rabbi Chaim Yosef David Azulai — in his commentary “Simchat HaRegel” on the Haggadah, explains that there are three ways one can fulfill the Mitzvah of the telling of Yetzias Mitzrayim. Ideally, the story should be told in the form of question and answer. The Talmud derives this from the Torah’s description of Matzah as “Lechem Oni” — the bread over which a person answers. The second level is to tell the story even if nobody asks. This is derived from the verse “and you shall tell your son on that day...” You should tell him, even if he doesn’t ask. Thus, the procedure of question and answer is preferable, but not absolutely necessary. (This is a rare example of L’chatchila and B’dieved in a Torah Mitzvah.) The third level is this: Even if a person is alone, he must speak about the going out of Mitzrayim. This is what Rabban Gamliel teaches when he says that one must “say” three particular statements as the bare minimum to fulfill the Mitzvah. Thus, there are three possible levels on which to perform the Mitzvah of Sippur Yetzias Mitzrayim. The Chida adds: When introducing the fourth son The Haggadah uses the word “and.” This teaches us that even if someone has other sons that fit into the first three categories, he should also pay attention to the one who does not know how to ask. This is an important lesson for those who are tempted to make the Haggadah an intellectual display which goes over the head of the youngest or least knowledgeable.

“And it is This...”

...Which has stood for our fathers and for us; for in each and every generation they stand against us to destroy us, and Hakadosh Baruch Hu rescues us from their hand.”

Exactly what “This” refers to is not immediately clear. Is it the promise made to Abraham, mentioned previously? Or that “Hakadosh Baruch Hu always rescues us from their hand?” Here is a third possibility — a unique insight into the phenomenon of anti-Semitism: This, that “in each and every generation they stand against us to exterminate us” — This is what has stood for us. Hard as we may try to forget our Jewishness and adopt the ways of our host nation, sooner or later they rise against us, remind us of our uniqueness, and awaken our commitment to Judaism.

“...And They Embittered Their Lives”

During a scholarly lecture, a simple person asked Rabbi Yonason Eybeschitz the following: The Torah says, “and they embittered their lives,” but the cantillation symbol that the cantor reads is a happy tune! The simplicity of his question amused the more erudite listeners. “Excellent Question!” said Rabbi Yonason. “Hashem told Abraham that his offspring would be in exile for 400 years. But in fact we were in Egypt for only 210 years. Why was this? Since the Egyptians “embittered their lives,” Hashem had pity on us and shortened the exile by 190 years — surely a cause for song! “By the way,” said Rabbi Yonason, to the astonishment of his listeners, “the cantillation symbol, ‘Kadma V’Azla,’ hints at this idea by its exact numerical value: 190.”

The Festive Meal

One of the unique aspects of the Seder is that we interrupt the saying of the Hallel with a meal. Why is that? The Netziv explains as follows: The purpose of going out of Egypt was to receive the Torah. With the Torah we gain the ability to serve Hashem not only through “spiritual” means, such as Torah study and prayer, but through “physical” Mitzvos as well, such as marriage, enjoying Shabbos, eating matzah, maror, and the Pesach offering. We eat in the middle of Hallel in order to praise Hashem for sanctifying and elevating our physical existence. Even “mundane” things like eating are elevated when we do them in the service of Hashem.

Hallel

In our lowliness, he remembered us... and redeemed us from our oppressors. He gives food to all flesh... Praise G-d of the heavens! These last four phrases of “Hallel HaGadol” can be seen as paralleling the four cups we drink tonight. Over the first cup we make kiddush and declare, “You chose us from all the nations.” Why did G-d choose us? The Sages explain that Hashem chose the Jewish people because of their humility. “In our lowliness” — in our humility, “He remembered us” and chose us. The second cup goes together with the Haggadah, where we tell how Hashem “redeemed us from our oppressors.” Bircas Hamazon, where we recognize that “He gives food to all flesh” is said over the third cup. And with the fourth cup we sing Hallel...”Praise Hashem of the heavens!”

tlety, the message managed to sneak under the defenses of the consumer and plant itself into his subconscious. And without knowing it, the next time he was shopping, for some unknown reason, he had this overpowering attraction to Fidofeed over his usual brand of dog food...

Subtlety can be a far more powerful hidden persuader than the overkill of knock-you-over-the-head pyrotechnics. By means of the seemingly subtle experiences of the Seder, the subliminal spiritual message sneaks under the defenses of the coarser aspects of the physical make-up and lodges itself in the depths of our souls.

READY, SET...

You often hear people complaining at the Seder: “You mean we have to eat all of this matzah in under four minutes?!”...

“If I have another glass of wine, I’m going to fall into the charoses!…” “You mean I have to eat all that matzah again just because I forgot to lean?!”... “Whaddya mean we have to finish the afikomen by midnight in exactly 45 seconds time?!”...

Why are we so particular to fulfill the physical dimension of the Seder to the letter? Why? Why do our prayers have to be written in the very precise formulation of the Seder? Why do we read the story to children who didn’t know about it first-hand. He was the first to plant the seed of redemption in the heart a new generation. The Torah he taught us echoes across eons. And had Moshe been the one to lead us into the Land of Israel, we never would have been exiled from it.

The answer lies in the very first Pesach seder in history.

After a full year in the desert, the Jewish People celebrated the Pesach festival. They offered the Pascal lamb and ate matzah and maror. But when it came time to tell the Pesach story, whom did they tell? To whom did they recount the acts, the wonders, the Strong Hand and Outstretched Arm? Everybody was there! Everyone saw it with their own eyes! Even babies in their mothers’ womb reached prophetic awareness during the splitting of the Red Sea!

MACHINE CODE FOR THE SOUL

The answer is that the Pesach night experience is a Seder. Seder means order. A precise sequence of events. It’s like machine code for a computer. The order of the code has to be precise to effect the subliminal spiritual experience of coming out of Egypt. Just as in computer machine code one zero too many or too little will make all the difference between the program running or crashing, so too the Seder operates within precise parameters. It’s a Seder. It has to be in this order. With a zero here. With a one here. And no other way.

So when you are singing Chad Gadya at the end of your Seder, and all you feel is that you would like a large glass of Alka-Seltzer, remember that whether you sense it or not, the Seder has put into your soul a spiritual program which will run every time you say in the Shema:

“I am Hashem, your G-d Who took you out of the land of Egypt to be your G-d.”

The Torah is able to penetrate to the very depths of the human psyche. It wants us to experience the Exodus as a spiritual rite of passage on the deepest level. The soul experiences reality on a very fine and non-material plane. Things that impress and affect the body are rejected by the soul as indigestible. Keeping to the very precise formulation of the Seder allows its subtle experiences to reach beyond the coarseness of the physical - to elevate and enlighten the soul.

Seeds of Eternity

Many people observe the Pesach Seder. This is so, regardless of their affiliation or observance of other mitzvos. Jews who build no Sukkah, who don’t know when Shavuos is, faithfully assemble year after year to talk about the going out of Egypt. Recounting the Exodus is a mitzvah deeply rooted in the consciousness of even the ‘least’ conscientious Jew. Why? The answer lies in the very first Pesach seder in history.

The Torah is able to penetrate to the very depths of the human psyche. It wants us to experience the Exodus as a spiritual rite of passage on the deepest level. The soul experiences reality on a very fine and non-material plane. Things that impress and affect the body are rejected by the soul as indigestible. Keeping to the very precise formulation of the Seder allows its subtle experiences to reach beyond the coarseness of the physical - to elevate and enlighten the soul.

Only one person — Moshe Rabbeinu — had children who did not personally experience the going out of Egypt. Moshe’s children, Gershom and Eliezer, were in Midian at the time of the Exodus. Moshe, therefore, was the first person in history to pass on the Pesach tradition to children who didn’t know about it first-hand. He was the first to plant the seed of redemption in the heart a new generation. Moshe Rabbeinu excelled in the ability to imbue his actions with lasting significance. With his ‘golden touch,’ he impacted eternity with every undertaking. He led us out of Egypt, never again to become a slave nation. The Torah he taught us echoes across eons. And had Moshe been the one to lead us into the Land of Israel, we never would have been exiled from it.

Because Moshe Rabbeinu inaugurated ‘Sippur Yetzias Mitzrayim’ — the telling of the going out of Egypt — it remains a mitzvah forever rooted in the hearts of the entire Jewish People.
