Rashi never just comments; something in the text always impels him to do so. Rashi’s comments are answers to unspoken questions and difficulties arising from a thoughtful reading of the Torah. Therefore, anyone who wants a true understanding of Rashi’s classic Torah commentary must always ask

“What’s Bothering Rashi?”

“You shall not take a bribe, for the bribe will blind those who can see and will pervert the words of the righteous (divrei tzadikim).” (Exodus 23:8)

Rashi: “Divrei tzadikim: Words that are righteous; judgments of truth.”

Rashi translates the Hebrew in an unusual way. Divrei tzadikim would normally mean “words of the righteous people.” Why does Rashi reject this in favor of the translation “righteous words?”

What’s bothering Rashi?

Answer: Rashi can’t reconcile calling judges who take bribes “righteous people.” It is a contradiction in terms! Therefore, the words — not the judges — are righteous, coming as they do from the Torah.

I Did Not Know That!

Parshas Mishpatim, dealing largely with monetary laws, precedes Parshas Terumah which details the donations needed to build the Sanctuary. This teaches that even when donating to charity (terumah), a person must be sure that the money honestly belongs to him (mishpatim).
