Sherlox Holmes and the Mystery of Reuven

“Little Falswell will have an inferiority complex when he grows up,” said world famous detective Sherlox Holmes.

“How do you figure?” asked Watstein.

“His mother constantly compares him to her other children. Comparing siblings always causes problems.”

“Speaking of problems with mothers and children,” said Watstein, “Help me with this problematic text concerning Leah and her son Reuven: ‘And she called him Reuven, for she said: G-d has seen my affliction...’ ” (Bereishis 29:32).

“What’s problematic?” asked Sherlox.

“Rashi’s comment. According to Rashi, Reuven stands for ‘reu ben’ — ‘look at the difference;’ with this name, Leah prophetically declared: ‘Look at the difference between my righteous first born, Reuven, and Yitzchak’s evil firstborn, Esav.’ ”

“Do you deny Leah her natural right as a mother to brag about her children?”

“No. But I deny the right of anyone to say that Rashi quotes a midrash for no reason! The verse itself clearly gives a reason for Reuven’s name! Why, then, does Rashi bring a midrashic reason for no apparent reason?

“Comparing siblings always causes problems,” said Sherlox.
Answer

“Compare Reuven’s naming to that of his brothers,” said Sherlox. “Notice anything?”

“Hmm,” said Watstein, thumbing through the text. “Now that you mention it, I notice an oddity regarding the order of the naming.”

“Continue,” said Sherlox.

“At the birth of Yakov’s other sons, the reason for the name is stated first. Then the name is stated: ‘This time I will praise (odeh) G-d, therefore she called him Yehuda,’ or ‘G-d has judged me (dan-ani)...therefore she called him Dan.’ ”

(Bereishis 29:35 30:5) Reuven is the one exception!”

“Exactly,” said Sherlox. “Regarding Reuven the order is reversed: Leah first names him — ‘and she called him Reuven’ — and only as an ‘afterthought’ does she give a reason — ‘for G-d has seen my affliction....’ Thus the text indicates that her decision to name him Reuven preceded the stated reason. She must have had another, unstated reason.”

“I see,” said Watstein. “By reversing the order, the text hints that the name Reuven came first and that the stated reason was secondary. Leah would have named him Reuven regardless of the stated reason, because she had another reason not stated in the text. Rashi answers the question: What was her other reason?”

“Spoken with reason,” said Sherlox.

I Did Not Know That!

And Lavan gathered all the people of the place and made a feast (lit. drinking repast). (Bereishis 29:22)

Lavan wanted Yakov to get intoxicated so that he could more easily fool him into marrying Leah. That’s why he made a festive meal which included alcoholic beverages. But when Yakov married Rachel, Lavan made no feast at all.
